ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would want to express my gratitude to Dr. Aduja Naik and Ms. Hasma Mujwar, as well as everyone else in the firm, for their tolerance and help during my training. I was able to develop marketing and learn about time management and new techniques thanks to their advice. These abilities will aid in the expansion of my resume and advancement of my profession. Dr. Aduja Naik deserves special gratitude for allowing me to continue working with liquid spawn beyond the internship time.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE COMPANY

Mushroom Connect was founded in December 2020 and specialises in the manufacturing, sales, and research and development of mushroom spawn and grow-at-home kits. Their workshops, consulting, and training programmes are well-known in the sector. Their goal is to assist farmers who want to start growing mushrooms on their own. Through its grow-at-home kits, the firm helps to foster an interest in farming among families and children. I applied for an internship job with them because I thought their mission aligned with my worldview and future professional objectives.

INTERNSHIP POSITION

As an intern at Mushroom Connect, I focused on improving the efficiency of growing mycelium in liquid spawn and developing a grow-at-home kit. Packaging, sales, offer tags, raw material collection, and media preparation were all areas where we collaborated.

OVERVIEW OF WORK DONE

Through YouTube videos, websites, and study articles, I learned about several forms of liquid spawn (honey, molasses, sucrose, table sugar, malt extract, maize dextrose, and so on). Through Google Meet, this was then discussed with other interns. The concept was to provide a modest amount (10-15 mL) of liquid spawn instead of 500 mL of solid spawn to lower the amount of spawn sold while maintaining a high yield and ease of transport. I also learned about solid spawn (wheat/bajra), which uses saw dust, hay, coffee grounds, and rice bran as a substrate. We were then summoned to college, where we learned about media preparation, sub culturing, kit and spawn preparation, sterilisation, decontamination, kit packaging and spray bottle assembly, cotton plug production, washing and cleaning of the apparatus and workplace, farmer's market sales, and developing new oyster mushroom recipes. Aside from that, I contacted folks who could provide Mushroom Connect with a sustainable and economical source of hay.

Potato Dextrose Agar was utilised as the mycelium growth medium. It was autoclaved after being blended with distilled water. The medium was put onto sterile petriplates and allowed to harden for 24 hours under laminar air flow. The mycelium is then put onto the PDA and allowed to grow until the plate is completely covered. The plate is incubated at 37 degrees Celsius in an incubator.

The grains are first washed before being turned into solid spawn. White oyster mushroom (Pleurotus ostreatus) and Bajra mushroom (Pleurotus djamor) are both soaked overnight, boiled for 5 minutes, then packaged in polypropylene bags. After that, they are autoclaved and left to cool. The grains are then infected with a little piece of PDA containing mycelium and let to grow until the mycelium completely covers them.

Hay is utilised as the substrate, which is chopped and rinsed twice in clean water to remove any dirt and soil. It is then allowed to dry in a low-moisture environment. The substrate is autoclaved after being packaged in polypropylene bags with cotton plugs. It is then sterilely infected with viable spawn and maintained in a dark environment.

It's time to sell the mycelium once it's almost completely spread. The substrate bag was placed within the folded boxes. The boxes were labelled with instructions and brand stickers, as well as spray bottles.

The kits include a window that allows the mushroom to fully mature. Following the purchase, a cut must be made on the window as directed, and the mushrooms will grow in approximately a week. Using the spray bottle provided, mist water twice a day or as needed depending on how dry the hay is. Harvest the mushroom by gently twisting the stem. Continue misting the kit for a higher output; if properly managed, a kit may offer up to 3-4 flushes (harvests). Direct sunshine, insects, and vermin must be kept away from the kit.

INTERNSHIP EXPERINCE

We got to go to college during lockdown, which was wonderful, but the workplace followed all of the Covid regulations. Learning about mushroom growing was a fascinating experience. Too much water in the substrate bags, tainted spawn, a lack of substrate, and locating an appropriate source are just a few of the issues that inhibited learning and production. One of the benefits of this internship is that I was able to acquire a few microbiological methods that I would not have learned via online classes.

Conclusion

I was able to have a better grasp of how the grow-at-home is generated and how sustainable it is through my internship at Mushroom Connect. I appreciated collaborating with Mushroom Connect's R&D, production, and sales teams to develop and implement production, marketing, and sales strategies. The creator and co-founder also provided an overview of the skills needed to launch a business or start-up. However, I still have a long way to go in terms of grasping all of the finer points of this industry, such as microbiological expertise.

Overall, I enjoyed my internship experience, and I am certain that I will be able to apply the skills I acquired later in my career.

CERTIFICATE OF INTERNSHIP

MARG (Movement for Amity towards Roads in Goa) Trust acknowledges that Mr. Anish Agni has completed internship of 150 hours at Freedom Fighter Adv. Pandurang Mulgaonkar Research Library managed by our Trust from 18th October 2021 to 18th December, 2021. Anish's job title was Internship Librarian, where he carried out the duties of maintaining the Library Accession Register, categorization of books, documentation of records etc. He was also instrumental in promoting the reading habits amongst the students by visiting a few schools and conducting motivational activities.

Anish has been a pleasure to work with, as he has shown initiative and interest in his duties while working independently. He was always keen to learn new things and was focused and hardworking. He was prompt in carrying out all the responsibilities assigned to him during the above mentioned period.

We are extremely satisfied with Anish's work in our Trust and wish him well in his future endeavor.
